His driver's license was seized and he was charged with false information and false documents. He had made a telephone call on his cellular telephone as he was being stopped by the police, advising the recipient of the call, in French, that he was being stopped by the police. The police determined that the number he called, was subscribed to by the Hotel Napoleon, Pizza Vittorio Emanuel II. The police went to the hotel and learned that a telephone call had been transferred to a room occupied by an Algerian and a French woman. The police also learned from the hotel personnel that the Algerian had received Arabic speaking males as visitors to the hotel room.

The hotel registry indicated that the Algerian had provided French documents to the hotel in the name of another. The French woman possessed a French identity card number identified as 12/10/1991 issued by France. She also possessed a French passport, number identified as 07/22/1994 issued in France. She also possessed copies of two other French government documents identifying that his name has been changed.

The police went to the hotel room and found the woman hurriedly packing a suitcase, and a man taking a shower. Upon seeing the police, the woman threw herself on the floor, screaming. The man told her, in French, that "they're Italian police, they're excrement." The Italian police found an Algerian containing photograph, issued to the following items: a copy of the Koran - which the Algerian did not want touched, a form I-20M-N, entitled, US Department of Justice, Immigration and Naturalization Service, Certificate of Eligibility for Non-Immigrant (M-1) Student Status For Vocational Students. The Italians seized cellular telephone on 08/22/1996 and LEGAT Rome has requested the results of the Italian investigation into the telephone. Initial results reveal contacts with four Italian cellular telephones:

The Italian investigator offered that one of the telephone numbers is associated however, they did not have the full connection yet. may be involved in narcotics trafficking. The FBI received information from multiple individuals who represented that [redacted] Hanjour were associated. The results of those interviews have been previously disseminated via a Letter Head Memorandum dated 09/22/2001. The information set forth below are excerpts from those interviews which established the basis for believing [redacted] with Hanjour.

On September 14, 2001, [redacted] provided the following information:

[redacted], School of Aviation, hereafter referred to as Sawyer, 2730 Sky Harbor Blvd., Phoenix, Arizona 85034, telephone number: [redacted], facsimile number: (602) 244-2282.

[redacted] stated that she distinctly remembers the above listed individuals because they wandered around the Sawyer facility liked they owned the place. They would all come into the facility at once and block off large segments of time on the AST-300 flight simulator. They would take turns using the simulator. When one of them was using the simulator the others would be lounging around the snack bar area or taking a nap while waiting for their turns on the simulator. [redacted] described these individuals as being rude to other Sawyer employees. [redacted] stated that these individuals would come in together. Sometimes all four would come in and at other times two would come in. She believes that two of the individuals only participated briefly in the training. She could not remember which two.

The individuals described above would not normally make reservations to block out time to use the simulator on the Sawyer's simulator schedule. The norm is for club members to call the Sawyer front desk and reserve simulator time. It is unusual for members not to reserve time in advance.

[ ] never saw a vehicle(s) associated with the above described individuals.

On September 15, 2001[ ] provided FBI Phoenix the following information:

[ ] advised that he was employed at Arizona Aviation Academy from 1991-1999.

[ ] advised that Hani Hanjour at the Arizona Aviation Academy in 1997.

[ ] advised that Hanjour had two additional flight instructors while attending Arizona Aviation Academy.

[ ] when Hanjour first began flying lessons at Arizona Aviation Academy, Hanjour already had some advanced training and a private pilots license.
Hanjour was training on the Cessna 172, which is a single engine, four seat and 150 horse power engine. The ability to fly a Cessna 172 could transfer over to the ability to fly a 757 airplane. Hanjour was also training for an instrument level, and the instructor for this training.

Hanjour was a terrible pilot. Hanjour had difficulty understanding air traffic control, the methods for determining fuel management and had poor navigational skills. The only flying skill Hanjour could perform was flying the plane straight. He did not believe Hanjour’s poor flying skills were due to a language barrier.

Hanjour took lessons two to three times per week, for two months. After two months, Hanjour was very quiet, and did not discuss politics, the military or any aspect of his personal life; however, Hanjour became very upset.

Hanjour would occasionally cheat on several flying tests and when confronted about it, Hanjour would lie about it. Hanjour only associated with the other Arab students, while at Arizona Aviation Academy.

Hanjour as a male, 5'5", short dark hair, light complexion, slight build, well spoken, and possessed adequate English skills. He was shown a picture of Hanjour and that was the person at Arizona Aviation Academy.

When he refused to continue instructing Hanjour, Hanjour started training. Hanjour completed his training.
On September 16, 2001, Phoenix FBI interviewed [redacted] regarding her knowledge of Hani Hanjour and known associates. [redacted] came in regular contact with Hanjour and his associates at Arizona Aviation from January 1998 to September 1999. [redacted] had contacted the task force to report that she had some information about Hani Hanjour. [redacted] provided the following information:

[redacted] students pursuing various ratings. While at Arizona Aviation she had occasional contact with Hanjour and associates.

[redacted] Hanjour as a small man who was very quiet. A picture of Hanjour was shown [redacted] and she recognized him as the Hanjour that trained at Arizona Aviation. Hanjour often participated in flying lessons for a one to two weeks and then would disappear for weeks or months at a time. Arizona Aviation, often had to call Hanjour in an effort to get Hanjour to pay his bill. Hanjour did not pay his fees daily but often let the monthly bill add up to $1,500 to $2,500, based on the money owed for the plane rental and instructor's fees. On at least two occasions, Hanjour came into the office and paid [redacted] in cash using small denominations, which he retrieved from an envelope that he was carrying.

[redacted] Hanjour and thought that he was pursuing his private pilots license while at Arizona Aviation. She thought that Hanjour may have also been pursuing his instrument rating as well, after getting his private pilots license.

Hanjour was friends with three other student pilots and two other pilot instructors, all of Middle Eastern decent. She assumed that Hanjour was roommates with several of the students based on them sharing rides to and from the airport.

Hanjour associates and described him as 22 or 23 years old, who was friendlier than the others. She knew his name because for all the Arizona Aviation students. often picked up and dropped off the other Middle Eastern students in his own car.

Another of Hanjour's associates, was a very large man weighing about 250 lbs and described him as having a good sense of humor. On May 31, 1998, for a "Stage 1 Phase Check" which was required to secure his private pilots license, wrote in her flight log book that she did not recommend to fly solo.

On September 19, 2001, provided FBI Phoenix the following information:

Westwind Aviation was located near the Deer Valley Airport. worked at the airport concession stand in order to raise money for the flight training and living expenses. In April 1997, he was granted his instructor certification. He was certified in commercial, multi-engine, and instrument ratings. wanted to become an instructor in order to build hours towards getting a higher level flight status and also to be more marketable to become an air transport pilot. Another student who also attended the Westwind Academy. He was approximately two months behind in his flight training. He flew on two different occasions that he knows of and described him as having a temper. He was Algerian by nationality. At the present time, Raissi is in Algeria or possibly England; however, has had no other contact.

Hani Hanjour was a Saudi Arabian National as very, very quiet who did not interact with the other students, to include the Arabic or the Muslim students. Hassan had seen Hanjour at the mosque many times and considered him to be overly religious. Hani Hanjour's flight training was financed that Hanjour took on the financial obligations to ensure that Hanjour was taken care of. Hanjour was described as not anti-social but very much to himself. He sat by himself at lunch and would not go out with the other pilots to do things. The only place that Hanjour was seen outside of the aviation school was by the mosque.
LOTFI RAISI

Hani Hanjour was also

Hanjour as a very poor pilot who did not react to criticism very well. Hanjour was very, very nervous inside the cockpit to the point where Hanjour was almost fearful. He flew with Hani Hanjour on five to six flights. Hanjour struggled with the instrument rating, Hanjour eventually passed his commercial pilot certification with the FAA. He had initially failed it once. He had failed it once for Hani Hanjour's English was extremely weak, and it is believed that he wanted to become a Saudi Arabian airlines pilot.

Immediately after Hanjour passed his check-out ride for his commercial rating, Hanjour left for Saudi Arabia. The last time I saw Hanjour was sometime during the religious holidays of Ramadan at the mosque. Hanjour did not approach them. They spoke only briefly. Hanjour said he wanted to come back to the United States to build more hours. Hanjour also asked if he knew where to go to get a 737 aircraft type rating. I told him that he would have to contact the school to find out how to get that rating.

I became aware that Hani Hanjour was one of the pilots of the hijacked aircraft on approximately Friday or Saturday, September 13 or 14, 2001. While he was talking to his wife on the phone, I noticed that Hani Hanjour's name and picture had come up on the media.

On September 21, 2001, I provided FBI Phoenix the following information:

West Airlines. Employees on the Boeing 737 flight system. Prior to his current job at the flight simulators at Sawyer Aviation (SA), a one hour dual check flight on the simulators of all individuals joining the Sim Club. A check flight on the simulator of an Arab man named Hani. Hani was not interested in going to flight school, he was only interested in using the simulator. I first met Hani in 1998. [ ] the Arab men that used the simulator come alone. From their behavior he felt that they were all a part of a support group to help each other learn on the simulator. [ ] lived at an apartment complex with another Arab man, whose identity was unknown.

individuals of middle eastern descent knew that the Phoenix, Arizona area, described as the valley, provided renowned flight training, to include Lufthansa Airlines. Lufthansa has significant operations in both the Phoenix area and the middle east. around 1990 there was a significant increase in the amount of people of middle eastern descent that began to request flight training in the Phoenix area.

[redacted] got one of her business cards and said "thank you" when they left the store. She advised that they did not buy anything and she has never seen either one since.

On November 5, 2001, [redacted] provided the following information:

[redacted] Aviation Safety Inspector, Federal Aviation Administration, Flight Standards Certificate Management Office, who is also a flight instructor, asserted the AST-300 is considered a training device that can improve a pilot's instrument skills. He further stated in his opinion based on the information he read or is aware of, the highjackers were not as skilled as professional airline pilots. Once the highjackers took over control of the aircraft, the highjackers may have been skilled enough to alter the aircraft's flight path through the on-board computers. A more likely scenario, however, a flight crew member was compelled to initially alter the aircraft's flight path to its ultimate destination. However, at some point, [redacted] believes the highjackers would have had to take control of the aircraft manually as they approached their targets. It is his opinion, that it would be very difficult, if not, impossible, and require a lot of skill and training to maneuver an aircraft solely through the on-board computers into such objects as the Twin Towers or the Pentagon. However, manually, the aircraft can be flown at the control and direction of the pilot who possess some flying skills.
Hani Hanjour is believed to have piloted American Airlines flight #77 into the Pentagon. Hanjour most likely manually maneuvered the aircraft off of its flight path. Hanjour very likely used the aircraft's instruments to assist in the maneuvering of the aircraft into the Pentagon.

The benefits of Hanjour, who has a commercial pilot's certificate and received training on a Boeing 737-200 simulator, training on AST-300 (the above noted simulator used at Sawyer), is that it would provide him confidence and improve his instrument skills which are to some degree transferrable to any aircraft to include a Boeing 757.

Sawyer records revealed the AST-300 simulator on 06/25/2001. Previous use of the simulator was entered in pilot log book. It is theorized that when confronted of the prospect of law enforcement authorities discovering entries in pilot log book documenting the training of Hanjour, tore out the associated log book page. a pilot who was introduced to Hanjour and had provided flight instruction stated that were struggling with instrumentation; would have been the most qualified to provide Hanjour training. It is also theorized that Hanjour only took the flying lessons because he was directed to, not because it was his ambition to become a pilot. Hanjour had tremendous difficulties progressing in his training and had started over on at least one occasion. Therefore, he needed the additional simulator training to develop the skills to perform his mission, that is, flying the plane into the Pentagon. (See comments above.)
